WOULD TAX THE GROWER. Developments have gone so rapidly in the tobacco situation in Kentucky recently and the fight between the growers on one side and the tobacco trust on the other has assumed so many new and startling phases that a fellow fied himself speculating as to what will happen next. The Growers the Burley Association of the Society of Equity et al seem to have moved the basis of their operations to the Kentucky Legislature and those enthusiastic members, who owe their election to the fight they have made and the fight they promise to continue in the interest of the farmers against the "Socialist Trust" seem to be voting with each other as to who will get in the heaviest blow in the shape of a drastic law. A number of bills have been introduced in the Legislature this session which were aimed more or less directly against the trust with the intention of driving that concern out of the state, but there was a measure introduced in both houses of the Legislature last week that goes a step further than any movement yet made. The proposed law leaves nothing to chance. Its purpose is to put out of business in this state not only the American Tobacco Co., and all other tobacco manufacturing companies but will fix the tobacco grower—the farmer so that he will be compelled to quit raising tobacco, move to another state or else turn his attention to other lines of farming in order to make a living. The bill provides for a license tax of $50 an acre on every acre of tobacco planted in Kentucky in the year 1908. The bill is intended to prohibit the growing of any tobacco in Kentucky at all this year and if it should be enacted into a law it would effectively do so for no farmer could afford to grow tobacco under such a handicap even if the price were to double the present figure. This is but a sample as to what extremes the advocates of fight against the tobacco trust will go in aiming at the combine they are striking a blow against the farmer that will soon put that individual out of business. We would suggest an amendment to the bill before it is voted on and that is that in addition to the tax on the tobacco crop that a similar amount be levied on every acre of corn and wheat and other grain grown in the state. Then they might go further and place a license tax on every brood sow, or mare or cow. It seems to us that this would be just as reasonable and would be equitable. We see but one chance of salvation of the farmers from those enthusiastic legislators and that is the hope that they will "over-reach" that they will, if allowed enough rope hang themselves. The tobacco business with its resultant evils of night riding, barn burning and so forth has done the farming interests more harm and decreased values to a greater extent than anything that has occurred in Kentucky in years. The Legislature would be in better business trying to enact some law to make amends for the damage already done.

FOUND DEAD IN BED. Mrs. Mary Hyland, widow of James Hyland, formerly a saloon proprietor of Louisville, as well as a member of the Fire Department, was found dead in her room above A. Lehman's grocery, 1223 West Walnut street, yesterday afternoon. The proprietor of the grocery became apprehensive on the failure of Mrs. Hyland to appear on the first floor during the morning, and accordingly raised the transom over her door to only gaze upon her prostrate form lying on the bed.

Coroner Groves pronounced death due to chronic asthma besides a broken heart. Mrs. Burke, a member of the No. 10 engine company, she is survived by three other brothers, William, Patrick and Alex Burke. The body was removed to the home of William Hyland, 1701 Magazine street.

Helped To Defend. Kentucky in Relation to the Revolutionary War" was the address delivered by Col. Bennett H. Young at the patriotic celebration of the State Society of the American Revolution, which was held in the Girls' High School at Fifth and Hill street last night.

In his address Col. Young pointed out the part that this State played in the struggle for American Independence. He showed that Kentucky's part was not her activity against the British Government, but in her staunch defense of the Western frontier.

Smoky Valley. Dances seem to be the order of the day.

Messrs. W. P. Merritt and A. L. Litley were in the city last week with their tobacco Mr. Merritt's crop averaged over 115 cents.

Mr. Johnnie Chesser sold his tobacco to Messrs. Hays and Burkhead of Brushgrove, at 94 cents around.

THE EFFECT.

Of Raising No Tobacco In Kentucky Will Be To Induce Farmers In Illinois to Plant.

The statement made by the Society of Equity that they will raise no tobacco in 1908 is causing comment among the farmers of Central and Southern Illinois. A. A. Dietrich, who is the owner of a farm near Effingham, Ill., was a visitor to the tobacco break yesterday and evinced much interest as to the way the weed was marketed.

"We are all interested in tobacco out our way," he said, "and more so since the growers in Kentucky have declared they will raise no crop this year. If they do this they will have to plant corn and the putting of 270,000 acres that have been used for tobacco in corn will hurt the price of the tobacco break. It is a gain in our industry this year, as we will all get the same market."

enough trouble as it is and they know that it is an easier matter to destroy a growing crop than to burn a barn."—incinnati Commercial Tribune.

Loafers are Dangerous. Did you ever consider how much trouble and turmoil in the world is stirred up by loafers? Do it and you will be surprised. Investigate carefully and you will find that nine of the ten fusses and quarrels that you know of in your town or neighborhood were started by loafers who had no business of their own to attend to and so got busy with other people's affairs.

The old juvenile proverb that "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do" is as true as gospel. There is no such thing as absolute idleness. Activity of some kind is essential to existence. Men and women have to do something and when they have no work of their own to occupy their minds they get busy with the affairs of others and make trouble always.—Hartford Democrat.

Lame Shoulder Cured. Lame shoulder is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles and quickly yields to a few applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Mrs. F. H. McCall of Bojone, New Brunswick, writes: "Having been troubled for some time with a pain in my left shoulder, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. With the first application I got prompt relief." For by Haydon & Robertson.

DRIVING. The Tobacco Trust Across the Ohio River.

W. H. Biedert, staff correspondent of the Indianapolis News, writing from Guthrie, Ky., says: "The American Tobacco trust, which is the tobacco trust, has 50,000 acres of land and is negotiating for much more than that. Before it is done it will probably get 100,000 acres. It has employed practical tobacco farmers and it is experimenting with the soil of Indiana to ascertain whether tobacco can be successfully raised in the Hoosier State, and if it can, Indiana will be one of the greatest tobacco States in the Union. In Indiana about 8,000 acres of land is already used in the tobacco culture. While some tobacco is raised in most of the Indiana counties, the greater part is grown in the counties of Brown, Clark, Dearborn, Dubois, Fayette Green, Harrison, Switzerland and Warrick. The American Tobacco is after land in Switzerland, Dearborn, Ohio, Warrick and Jefferson. It has now great warehouses in Warrick, Spencer and Ohio counties. Indiana at present raises about 7,000,000 pounds of tobacco a year. The biggest tobacco market in the world is Louisville, and it is possible that even if the plans of the tobacco trust are carried out Louisville will remain the great market, although the plan of the company contemplates making markets at Evansville, Lawrenceburg and Cincinnati."

Lebanon Locals. (From The Falcon.)

Next Monday will be the first day of Circuit Court in the county, and the docket is the lightest for many years. On the common law docket there are fourteen new cases and twenty cases continued from the previous term, while the equity docket consists of 42 continuances and thirteen appearances, among the latter two divorce cases.

Dr. J. Lancaster Putnam has filed an affidavit in the Circuit clerk's office in effort to prevent Judge Thurman from presiding at the trial of the indictments against the former for selling liquor in local option territory. In that paper he charges the judge with being "biased and prejudiced against not only this defendant but any one charged with violation of the local option law which is in force in Lebanon."

Night Riders Used Whip. Dawson Springs, Ky.—Colonization came to the tobacco troubles of this county when John Heath, an association prisoner and buyer, was taken from his room in the Arcadia Hotel shortly after midnight this morning and whipped with switches.

The riders, all masked and numbering about forty, shot through the corridors of the hotel before they located Heath and when they had "bumped" they took him to the river bank and whipped him.

This they followed with a lecture warning him that if he "bought or tried any more tobacco" he "would be killed on their return trip."

Several nights ago they whipped Hart Maness, a farmer of the district, who was charged with selling pooled tobacco to Heath.

It was just a few minutes after 12 o'clock when the riders appeared at the Arcadia. Mrs.

Sulphur Expelled the Rats.

Here is a Maine farmer's mode of ridding his premises of rats and mice.
"If you sprinkle sulphur on your barn floor and through your corn as you gather it, there will not be a rat or mouse to bother. I have done this for years and have never been bothered with rats or mice. I have some old corn in my crib at present, and not a rat or mouse can be found. In stanching hay or oats sprinkle on the ground and a little through each load, and my word for it, rats or mice can't stay there. A pound of sulphur will be sufficient to protect a large barn of corn and is good for stock and will not hurt the corn or bread."—American

Death of Mrs. Nannie Walker

Last Wednesday evening, the 22d inst., at 7:30 o'clock, Mrs.
Nannie Walker passed away, at her home on Grand Ave., aged 70 years. The deceased was born near Mackville and was a descendant of Robert Mitchell, who with the Shipley and Brown families of North Carolina, emigrated to Kentucky over a hundred years ago. They followed the "Wilderness Road," and camped for rest at Crab Orchard, where they were surprised by Indians, and Mrs. Mitchell was taken hacked and died, and her daughter, Sarah, taken captive and sold into slavery to a Frenchman in Canada. Robert Mitchell, grandfather of Mrs. Nannie Walker, hearing of his daughter's whereabouts, three years later, in company with Gen. Adair, set out on horseback to recover possession of her. In an attempt to ford a river he was drowned and Gen. Adair was forced to give up the quest, which was taken up then by Gen. Bob Mitchell, the father of the subject of this sketch, who went to Canada where he found his sister, purchased her freedom and brought her Kentucky, where she later became the wife of John Thompson and mother of Mitchell Thompson, whose widow, aunt Mary Thompson, died on the 26th of Dec. last.

It was from such brave courageous pioneer stock that Mrs.
Walker descended, and she bore the sorrows and disappointments of life with the same undaunted spirit that characterized her forefathers. The deceased was the mother of five children; John R.
Aber R., James C., of Lebanon, Nannie E. and Logan M. Walker all of whom were with her in her last illness.

Mrs. Walker was a member of the Pleasant Grove Presbyterian church, and a Christian of the purest type. The funeral was conducted at Pleasant Grove church Friday morning at 11 o'clock, by the pastor, Rev. W.
T. Overstreet.

A Tribute.

"The young may die—the old must die." While to the first death seems an awful monster, intruding upon one's plans and prospects; to the other, if children of God by faith in Jesus Christ, is a welcome messenger, calling away from toil and sorrow and pain to eternal rest and joy.
These thoughts come to me in connection with the death of my old friend, Mrs. Nannie Walker.

I first met her when I was a child, and she a young lady. I was then impressed with her kind sympathizing manner. As I grew older I learned to love and admire her as a true Christian. God led her as she always desires His children through the fires of affliction, but the heavenly graces only stone the brighter for the ordeal. Left a widow, with five little children to provide for (one an infant) she bravely shouldered the burden, and no soldier could have fought his battles with more courage than she did. It was a touching scene, one that is engraved on my memory, of how as she stood and departed her babe to God in triumph. She wanted all her children to have the seal of the covenant. She tried to teach them by precept and example.
She labored for their maintenance and all the while was so cheerful and bright, it was refreshing to look upon her countenance. And when in the latter part of her life continued suffering was her lot, she bore it with unfailing patience, and then God took her home. She, like the "Captain of his salvation" was made perfect through self-sufficing.
To her children, I would say, don't grieve for mother. Think of her as resting in the arms of the "Father" in which the "Many" have prepared, "waiting and waiting for you."

How sweet it will be to that beautiful land Where free from all sorrow and pain, With song on her lips,
And hands raised in praise,
To meet one another again.

To this end love, and serve the God she loved. Make His holy word as precious to you as it was to her, and with her life as an example and incentive, you will doubtless meet her again in that beautiful land.

CURED.

"Dear me, wife, not done yet! Why is it so long, and you are still in your morning wrapper," said Mr. Williams as he came home from his work and found his wife still in bed.

"Yes, but do you not know that 'woman's work is never done?' There is the baby, too."

"Yes, Ella, but do you not know that it is so long, and you are still in your morning wrapper, said Mr. Williams as he came home from his work and found his wife still in bed."

"Yes, but do you not know that 'wo-
the baby, too."

"Well, you just go off somewhere and see if you don't find things in 'apple pie order' when you come back."
Thus ended the evening chat.

The following day she received a note saying:

Dear Ella—Come immediately. I am very ill. Your mother.

John, who returned from his work and had read the note said: "Go, by all means. I will attend to the housekeeping," added he, with a confident air.

"John, I shall be obliged to leave the baby at home. In case I should not be home again tomorrow will you see that he is fed?"

"Of course. Do you think I would starve him?"

"I am his mother."

"The next morning while Mrs. W. was on her way to her mother's house John was at home, introduced into the mystery of the kitchen."

About dinner time he went down into the cellar and soon returned with a large bowl of sweet cream. After pleasing this on the table he put on his hat and coat and sauntered down to the butcher's after a steak for dinner.

In going out he forgot to shut the door after him, and on his return home he found five cats lapping the cream he had left on the table.

"Well," he said, "I shall say nothing of this to Ella, but I'll broil the steak, and that will make up for the loss of the cream."

He then fired up Ella's apron around him as he had seen Ella do when she was out to engage in some such kind of work, put the steak into a frying pan and covered it over with a hot lid, fully expecting to find the steak nicely done when he should again raise the lid.

Alas, however, the steak was burned to a cinder.

"That is strange," said John. "Ella's broiled steak never resembled this certainly."

By this time he was quite hungry.
He was not quite so hungry as he had been that morning.

To get out of bed, one thing I'll have for dinner. I'll warm up the dishes that are left over from yesterday's dinner.

"You have done us, darling," said he.

Bored, Contented Goers.
The simple love—meaning, of course, the layman's—is so curiously constituted that he wants not only to enjoy music himself, but he wants others to enjoy it. He wants to force them to enjoy it, and to that end he will pay money out of his own pocket. Such elements as the spirit of speculation and hope and envy may enter into the process of making up this huge annual deficit, but ultimately the audience which direct and indirect, make possible a successful life in America will be trained in this curious characteristic. And this incidentally accounts for the many bored faces one sees whenever music is the entertainment.—William E. Walter in Atlantic.

"I have come to see Mr. Williams," said the lady who rang the bell.
"Mrs. Williams is not in at present."

"Then I should like to see Mr. Williams if he is in."

"I am his maid."

"You'll send the lady, trying in vain to keep from laughing."

Then poor John, who had been reflecting his father's appearance, felt ready to die of shame. There was no help for it, however. He heaved the body into the chair, and there he sat, in which the fumes of the burned steak had not yet been fully dissipated.

Such a laughing warble was doing, he led her to the sofa, and she sat down, not upon it, but into the man containing the chair.

John started back, not knowing what to do or say.

In the midst of these troubles the baby began to cry, and John, now terrified beyond everything, rushed into the other room, instantly realizing that if Ella did not come soon he would put it all into those hands.

The lady in the front room kept very quiet. She thought she heard someone crying. She heaved. It was John.
He was talking to himself. He said, "Oh, dear Ella, come back to me again and forgive me, and you shall never hear me laugh again."

Then the old lady in the front room snipped off her wig, her old black veil and her dress, and in a very few moments she was Ella. She was the first before him.

"Oh, Ella, forgive me!" were his first words on recovering from his surprise.
She forgave him, then told him how she had come to see him.
